Welcome to the Conference

By Joe William Trotter, Jr., UHA President

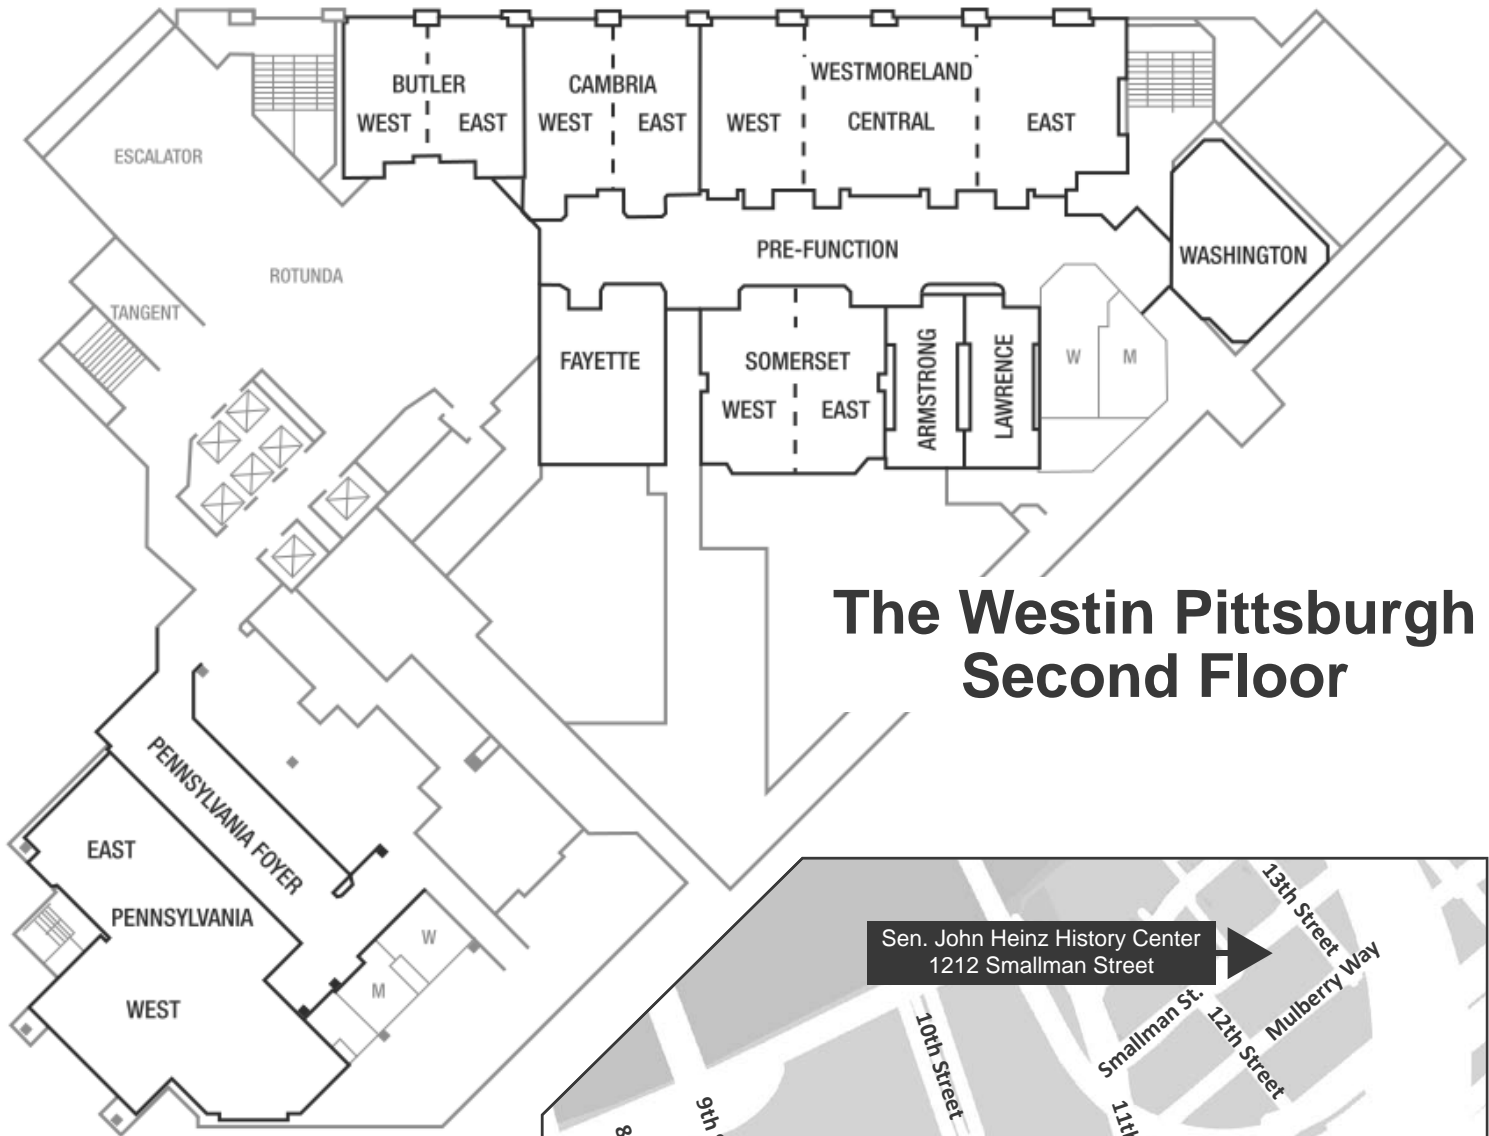

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 10th Biennial Conference of the Urban History Association. We are excited to welcome urbanists from around the globe to the city of Pittsburgh for this historic gathering. This is our first in-person conference since the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic. It is also the 21st anniversary of our first biennial conference that met in the Steel City in 2002.

Pittsburgh is also an apt site for scholars, activists, architects, and policy makers to explore challenges of urban life, past and present. The Steel City not only suffered perhaps the most devastation to its people and resources in the wake of deindustrialization during the late 20th century. It also led the way toward the creation of a new digital age economy driven by the production of education, technical, social, and health services. Twice designated the nation's "most livable city" by Rand McNally, Pittsburgh offers an unusual opportunity for visitors to tour a city that has creatively reinvented itself.

In collaboration with the Westmoreland Museum of Art's Frank Lloyd Wright Symposium, exhibit, tour, and Fallingwater event, the Program Committee (chaired by Marcus Hunter and Alison Isenberg) has assembled an innovative program on the conference theme, "Reparations and the Right to the City." Similarly, the Local Arrangements Committee (chaired by Andrew Masich and Laurence Glasco) has reinforced the conference theme with a wide variety of tours of local historic sites in the Pittsburgh region. Again, welcome to Pittsburgh. We hope that you will thoroughly enjoy the variety of conference papers, special sessions, and plenaries as well as tours of historic sites and outstanding restaurants in and near the conference hotel.

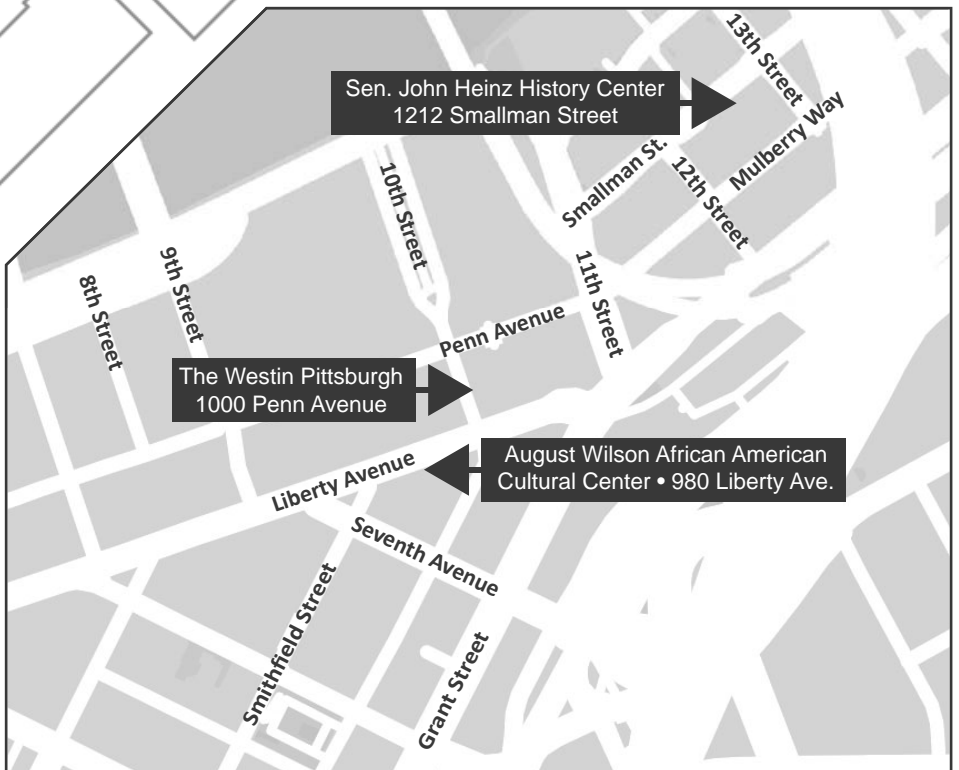

Joe William Trotter, Jr. is the Giant Eagle University Professor of History and Social Justice and past History Department Chair at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. He is also the Director and Founder of Carnegie Mellon's Center for Africanamerican Urban Studies and the Economy (CAUSE) and a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He is the author of numerous articles and books, including Workers on Arrival: Black Labor in the Making of America (University of California Press, 2019), The Ghetto in Global History: 1500 to the Present (edited with Wendy Z. Goldman), (Routledge, 2017), and Race and Renaissance: African Americans in Pittsburgh Since World War II (with Jared N. Day, University of Pittsburgh Press, 2010).

Special Pre-Conference Event

What If...?: Frank Lloyd Wright's Vision for Pittsburgh

This day-long, pre-conference event includes a morning symposium, facilitated by Dr. Joe Trotter, Professor of History and Social Justice at Carnegie Mellon University, and Justin Gunther, Vice President and Director of Fallingwater, followed by lunch, a curators' tour of the new exhibition Frank Lloyd Wright's Southwestern Pennsylvania, and a special reception at Fallingwater. The symposium proceedings along with the complementing exhibition tour will explore Frank Lloyd Wright's aspirational vision for modern life at the middle of the 20th century and the architect's lasting influence on southwestern Pennsylvania. Symposium speakers include Dr. Rob Ruck and Dr. Edward Muller of University of Pittsburgh with a keynote by Dr. Nick Webb, Lecturer in Architecture, University of Liverpool.

The exhibition tour will be led by curators Scott Perkins, Senior Director of Preservation and Collections at Fallingwater, and Jeremiah William McCarthy, Curator of American Art at the Westmoreland Museum of American Art. This innovative exhibition provides, for the first time, a virtual exploration through realistic animations of unrealized civic, commercial, and residential projects designed by Frank Lloyd Wright for this region.

The day ends with the unique opportunity to experience Fallingwater with a private wine and hors d'oeuvres reception and self-guided tours of the house.

This event is generously sponsored by Fallingwater.

Overview

10:00 AM-5:00 PM – HEINZ HISTORY CENTER (Free Admission) 1212 Smallman Street

The Heinz History Center will offer free admission to anyone who shows their UHA Conference badge at the Admissions Desk during the conference, October 26 -29.

2:00-5:00 PM – REGISTRATION Westin Pittsburgh: Third Floor

1:00-4:00 PM – TOUR: PITTSBURGH'S JEWISH HISTORY

Westin Pittsburgh Main Lobby (transportation provided)

The tour will begin at the Heinz History Center, where participants can view archival materials related to Pittsburgh's Jewish history, as well as documentation from the cross-cultural community response to the October 27, 2018 synagogue shooting. From there, the tour will visit the former Irene Kaufman Settlement House auditorium in the Hill District and learn about the Curtaineers, an integrated theater troupe created in the 1940s and 1950s in response to a shift in neighborhood demographics. The auditorium is now home to a community arts space called ACH Clear Pathways. The tour will follow Murray Avenue through Squirrel Hill, showing the evolution of the once predominately Jewish business district with the arrival of AAPI immigrants over the past two decades. The final stop will be The Rotunda Collaborative in East Liberty/Highland Park, which is a gorgeous former synagogue being converted into a multi-use community arts space. This tour is sponsored by The Jack Buncher Endowed Chair in Jewish Studies, Department of History, Carnegie Mellon University.

2:00-5:00 PM – TOUR: FROM INDUSTRIAL TO POST-INDUSTRIAL: (RE)DEVELOPMENT IN PITTSBURGH AND BRADDOCK

Westin Pittsburgh Main Lobby (transportation provided)

Tour leaders: Michael Carriere (Professor of History, Milwaukee School of Engineering), Rebecca Kiernan (former Director of Sustainability and Resilience, City of Pittsburgh), David Schalliol (Associate Professor of Sociology, St. Olaf College), and representatives of the Pittsburgh Department of City Planning, the Hollander Project, Hazelwood Initiative, Community Kitchen Pittsburgh, and Rivers of Steel.

Pittsburgh and its neighbor Braddock have been hailed as leaders in post-industrial redevelopment, the former for its surprising ascendance in the 1990s, the latter for a more DIY approach made famous by now-U.S. Senator John Fetterman. This tour will visit three major industrial redevelopment sites from the last 20+ years, where we will hear from participants and experts who can unpack this complicated history, present, and future:

- Downtown Braddock, where we will hear from representatives of The Hollander Project, a co-working space and business incubator for women entrepreneurs from Braddock and the surrounding Mon Valley.
- The Homestead Steel Works Pump House in Munhall, an important part of the U.S. labor movement now part of The Waterfront mall redevelopment, where we will hear from interpreters from the heritage-oriented nonprofit organization Rivers of Steel.

- Hazelwood Green in Pittsburgh, an ongoing 178-acre waterfront redevelopment of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, where we will hear from a Pittsburgh city planner and a community activist involved in anti-gentrification and displacement efforts related to the project.

A portion of the ticket price will go to snacks from Community Kitchen Pittsburgh, a not-for-profit organization that addresses structural employment issues and food access. Topics from the tour will be further explored during the session "Contesting the Contested City: Towards a New Understanding of Creative Placemaking."

6:00-8:00 PM – WELCOME RECEPTION and BOOK EVENT

Westin Pittsburgh: Third Floor, Allegheny I and II

Welcome Remarks from the UHA, Carnegie Mellon University, the University of Pittsburgh, and Pittsburgh City Hall.

In his award-winning book, IN THE SHADOW OF THE IVORY TOWER, Davarian Baldwin tells a story that urban historians live but one that seemed to remain hiding in plain sight. In this book event, Baldwin will chronicle how he decided to explore higher education's growing control over today's urban life and why urban history methods and approaches were so central to shedding light on what he calls the rise of "UniverCities." He will also discuss how this work has been catapulted from academic research to political advocacy for reparations campaigns and a more equitable right to the city everywhere. Copies of the book will be on sale, sponsored by Pittsburgh's White Whale Bookstore.

Westin Pittsburgh Main Lobby (transportation provided)

Declared a National Historic Landmark in 2006, Carrie, as it's affectionately known, entices visitors to marvel at the scale and legacy of its industrial might. A remnant of the legendary U.S. Steel Homestead Steel Works, the Carrie Blast Furnaces are a vestige of Pittsburgh's 20th century domination of the steel industry. During this two-hour guided tour, you'll hear stories about the site's technology (including why it is nationally significant) along with the iron-making process, from the movement of the raw materials to the tapping of the furnaces that produced fiery molten iron. You will also get to know the culture of the industrial workers and the communities in which they lived - historically and presently - and how these relationships influenced the past and help to inform the future of the region.

Urban History as Family History: A Conversation Across the Generations

Westin Pittsburgh Third Floor, Allegheny I and II

Henry Louis Taylor SUNY-Buffalo

Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor Princeton

Moderator: Davarian L. Baldwin Trinity College

With the publication of Race For Profit, Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor immediately rose to prominence as a singular voice in the field of urban history. But in our celebrity age of individual genius, far too many fail to realize that her radical analysis of housing was firmly rooted in her childhood experiences, most specifically with her father, the Black Marxist urban planning scholar Henry Louis Taylor. With Keeanga and Henry Taylor in conversation, we have the rare opportunity to discuss how a broad-ranging and prophetic vision of urban history took place across the generations of a single family history.

Edward Baptist *Cornell UniversityJean-Pierre Brutus *Senior Counsel, New Jersey Institute for Social JusticeClaire Dunning *University of MarylandMame-Fatou Niang Carnegie Mellon UniversityModerator: Clarence Lang Penn State University

An interdisciplinary group of social historians, anthropologists, and economists discuss urban inequality and issues of redress from the transatlantic slave trade through recent times. The panel aims to spark widespread discussion and debate on different conceptions of reparations, what form it might or should take, who pays, and how to combat resistance, build alliances, and set short and long-term goals and timelines. Perhaps most important, this panel considers the utility of a distinctive urban perspective on the question of reparations in the ongoing quest for social justice in our own times. Sponsored by The Humanities Center at Carnegie Mellon.
